MRC Free Speech America researchers searched Google using a “clean environment” for the term “presidential campaign websites” to observe which campaign websites Google displayed on its first page of results.

When searching the term "presidential campaign websites," Google returned only Democratic Party candidates, some of which are not even running in 2024. A notable Democrat that does not appear is Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., who is, at present, the biggest threat to President Joe Biden's nomination.

No Republican Party candidates appear at all in the first page of Google search results -- and this, a day before the first Republican Party presidential primary debate on Wednesday.

Google search results for “presidential campaign websites”:

Order	Candidate's Website	Search Result Rank
1	Joe Biden	2
2	Marianne Williamson	5
3	Bernie Sanders	9
4	Elizabeth Warren	12
5	Hillary Rodham Clinton	29

Methodology

For this report, MRC Free Speech America analyzed the Aug. 22 Google search results of presidential campaign websites. MRC Free Speech America created an algorithm to automate this process in a clean environment. A “clean environment” allows for organic search to populate results without the influence of prior search history and tracking cookies.

MRC Free Speech America researchers searched the innocuous words “presidential campaign websites” using the algorithm. To determine bias, our researchers looked at Google’s results and recorded the rank(s) of each candidate’s campaign website on the first page of results.
